Town donates $1,300 to Lions

Town rewards group for site clean-up

by Richard Westlund

The Town of Didsbury will pay the Didsbury Lions Club $1,300 for the clean-up of the site before it was closed.

Last month the Lions expressed a desire to get out of the recycling contract they held with the Town. The Town agreed and the Lions volunteered to clean up the site in preparation for the new site which opened this weekend.

The Lions told administration that $1,200 to $1,300 was needed as part of wrapping up their books and approached the Town to see if something could be done.

At the regular Town Council meeting held last Wednesday an old invoice from the Lions to the Town was distributed to Town Councillors. Earlier this year the invoice was sent to the Town in the amount of $2,720.98.

Director of Operational Services Jean Levasseur said most of the items on the invoice would have been paid by the Town according to the agreement. The Town made the decision not to pay for most of the things on the invoice however because some of the items were over two years old.

Waterways group will explore the Red Deer River

On June 8, 2002, the Mountain View Waterways Restoration Group will be hosting a raft float on the Red Deer River near Sundre.

The event, co-hosted by the educational group River Watch, is being held for people from farms and towns within the County. Participants will learn about what is being done and what people can do to help conserve water quality and watershed health in our area.

They will also have the experience of learning "from the river's perspective" - while floating on a raft down the Red Deer.

Since starting in 1995, River Watch trips such as this have been in great demand across central and southern Alberta, with schools and community groups.

TOWN COUNCIL

Town Council expresses interest in inmate labour

Questions
focused on new outdoor
rec. park

by Richard Westlund

Didsbury Town Councillors expressed some interest in a presentation made by the warden of the Bowden Institution about the work-release program for inmates.

Shortly after a presentation was given by warden Mitch Kassen about the benefits the work-release program give the public and the inmates, Councillors and the CAO asked questions about whether the program could be used in helping to construct Didsbury's proposed outdoor recreation facility.

Councillor Gary Dolha explained the recreation project would need skilled labour of some level and asked if the inmates would be qualified for such a project.

"We have 670 inmates at Bowden and wide range of skills," said Kassen, adding that inmates have done projects like putting up fence for ball diamonds.

Councillor Clem Kuelker asked about how long a municipality would have to wait before they would have access to the program.

Kassen said the average wait is about six months.

Town of Didsbury CAO Evan Parliament said picnic tables would have to be made for the park and asked if inmates would be able to do that. Kassen said that picnic tables have been made by inmates before and that kind of job could be done at the institution if the materials were dropped off there.

Bowden Institution is a federal prison with inmates serving anywhere from two-year sentences to life. Of the 670 inmates, 80 are kept in a minimum security area and are eligible for the work-release program. Their application is judged on risk and the amount of time left in their sentence.

Kassen said the program has benefited municipalities and community groups with projects which would not be done because of otherwise high labour costs.

Bowden prisoners have done work in Red Deer, Lacombe, Innisfail and Olds.

TOWN AND COUNTY

Town will check funding for intermunicipal talks

Council takes steps to act on previous talks

by Richard Westlund

Before Didsbury Town Council decides on a direction to take on the Intermunicipal Discussions it has had with Mountain View County it will approach Municipal Affairs to find out what they are willing to contribute to future meetings.

Councillors from the Town of Didsbury have been meeting with County Councillors since last year talking about shared services and trying to come up with different initiatives to cooperate on. Talks have been ongoing since the two municipalities announced the initiative in a press conference last year.

The meetings have been with a mediator which has been paid by the Town, the County and the Province.

Town CAO Evan Parliament explained to Town Councillors that the Province, which has been extremely supportive of the Town and County's initiative, may be ready to give some money towards future progress of the project.

Parliament added Municipal Affairs may also be interested in sending a representative, at their own cost, to mediate future meetings between the two municipalities.

Councillor Clem Kuelker said he wanted to see a committee established to further investigate the topics that were discussed between the County and the Town to help develop them further.

Councillor Dolha questioned if that meant just more meetings.

Kuelker replied that different people could spend more time on the issues than the Councillors.

Parliament also stated with the number of issues that were discussed between the two municipalities it would be impossible to address them all in just a single year. He said if another committee was established the list could be prioritized.

Mayor Dorothy Moore said she would like to see intermunicipal planning taking a front seat when it comes to acting on the previous discussions.

She said there are some examples of municipalities planning together in "fringe" areas. Some areas have even incorporated tax sharing in some of their models.

"That would be one area to start on," she said.

Toxic Waste Round-up hits Didsbury

Town shop will be location accepting household wastes

The Didsbury Town Shop will be the location local residents will be able to drop off their household hazardous wastes this year.

On June 14, from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. the Household Hazardous Waste Round-Up will take place and Didsburians will have the opportunity to get rid of household toxic waste.

Hazardous wastes consist of solid or liquid materials, or containers holding gases, which have outlived their usefulness.

These wastes may harm humans or the environment unless given special handling and treatment in the way they are discarded. They may be flammable, corrosive, explosive or toxic. Because of these dangerous characteristics they should not be disposed of in landfills or sewage systems.

Products in the household that have a flammable, corrosive, reactive/explosive or toxic/poison warnings are usually a good indication that potentially have hazardous characteristics.

Everything collected at the Round-Up is sorted, packed and labelled by qualified personnel.

It is then taken to the Swan Hills Treatment Centre for disposal.

All materials should be in their original containers. If a container is broken, it should be placed in a leak-proof package and then labelled.

The institution has two six-man work crews which consists of inmates that will be later released back into society.

"They are able to pick up on skills they once knew about or start to develop good work habits," said Kassen. "It's our job to prepare them as much as we can," he said.

Besides the initial evaluation of the inmates, Kassen said many other safety procedures are taken into consideration before an inmate is able to go out on a job. Before a project is started, officials from Bowden will meet with the local RCMP detachment to let them know about the project taking place and the names of the inmates involved with the project will be checked to make sure their isn't a reason the inmate can't participate in the respective community.

Work on the projects is done at times when there are minimal people around whether that means pick a certain time in the year or in the day.

Prisoners are supervised while they work.

Since the project started in 1994, only one inmate has ever walked away from a work crew.

Now, more than 4,000 community members a year float their local river with River Watch to learn about their river first-hand and to encourage environmental stewardship.

The Mountain View Waterways Restoration Group has conducted annual "Waterways Tours" in 2000 and 2001. On these tours, participants visit examples of environmentally sustainable agriculture practices.

For 2002, the group has decided to offer a different perspective on their tour - that of the river. In addition, this tour will be of interest to both urban and rural residents. In recognition of the fact that everyone is part of a watershed, this raft float will assist in getting everyone to work together to protect watershed health and water quality.

This event, and the Mountain View Waterways Restoration Group in general, is open to anyone's participation. For information, please contact the group's watershed coordinator, Ken Lewis, who can be reached at 335-3311.

OLDS/DIDSBURY AIRPORT

Town Council agrees to put airport up for sale

Council agrees land should be assessed before market-value sale

by Richard Westlund

The Olds/Didsbury airport will be put up for sale at market value.

At the May 29 regular Town Council meeting, Councillors approved a motion that would investigate the worth of the Olds/Didsbury Airport and to sell it at that price.

Mountain View County has expressed interest in purchasing the airport and preliminary talks have begun between Olds, Didsbury and the County.

If no sale is reached on the airport then according to the motion, Didsbury will explore an agreement between the three municipalities which would see each responsible for a certain portion.

Didsbury Town Council has received a $6,600 quote for having the airport assessed. Town of Didsbury CAO Evan Parliament said the land, the terminal and the custodian building all have a value but it is uncertain as to what the total value of the property is. It is estimated the land, which would hold most of the value for the airport is worth approximately $280,000.

"The County is interested," said Parliament. "They have made it clear they are interested. But if they choose to buy it, it is going to cost them," he said adding that the Town will not sell the property at a low cost just to get rid of it.

"I think this is something that needs to be done slowly. I'm not of the opinion that we should jump in and sell it for a dollar."

Parliament said that right now with the costs of running the airport, the property could be seen as a liability. But with a plan of expansion, Parliament said the airport "could build up a nice little capital account".

The cost of expanding the airport could be quite costly. Councillor Gary Dolha said that even putting an overlay on a runway can cost hundreds-of-thousands of dollars.

Applications have been made to build more hangers near the airport.

Mountain View County changes lease renewal rules

by Richard Westlund

Following a recommendation from the Agricultural Service board, County Council changed the way it will determine lease rates of County land.

The method the County has been using to determine lease rates is identifying the carrying capacity times the current grazing unit per AUM (animal units per month).

According to the agenda for the May 22 regular meeting the question has been raised as to whether County land should be leased at a renewal rate lower than the successful tendered rate of the current leasee accepted by Council three years ago.

Council was presented with three different options and chose to offer the property at the greater of the tendered price or the current County market value calculation (number of units by AUM rate).

This is expected to provide a higher return on the lease but will create a discrepancy with lease rates charged to other lease holders.

For example, if the tendered price is higher than the market value, the AUM rate would therefore be higher than the rate used for leases determined using the market value method.

Other options presented

County Council included using the market value calculation following the first three years at the tendered rate or establishing a County annual market rate that reflects the actual market rate in the private sector.

Council unanimously went with the first option presented on the agenda.

ROBBERY INVESTIGATION

Didsbury RCMP searching for culprit in gas station robbery

Masked man, armed with handgun, steals cash, cigarettes

by Richard Westlund

Didsbury Police are searching for suspects after the Carstairs Esso/Mac's store was robbed in the middle of the night.

A lone male suspect wearing a black balaclava entered the store on May 28 carrying a handgun and ordered the lone employee working at the time to give him all the money in the cash registers and also to give him cigarettes.

An undetermined amount of money and cigarettes were put in a Mac's bag.

The subject is described as a white male 5'9" to 6 feet-tall. He was wearing grey sweat pants, runners and a dark blue sweat shirt with a T-shirt underneath.

The suspect left the building on foot and headed in a North East direction.

Staff Sergeant Ron Platz said police responded to the scene about ten-minutes after the incident.

It is the second time in as many years the Carstairs Esso has been robbed. Last year the Didsbury Police apprehended those responsible after a brief investigation.

In the most recent robbery, the lone employee handed over what was demanded and was able to get a description of the suspect - what is the right thing to do in a situation like this.

"Absolutely it is a lot of stress for the victim," he said. "You don't try to fight them and should go along with their demands."

Platz said in an incident such as this high-priority is placed on the case. He said all members of the detachment will have input into the investigation especially in the initially stages after the crime when the trail is still hot.

"We're optimistic," said Platz. "We are confident that we will come up with some leads."

Platz said the detachment is also relying on help from the public. Anyone with information is asked to call Crime Stoppers or the Didsbury RCMP.

OPINIONS EDITORIAL

Inmates' contributions

RICHARD WESTLUND
EDITORIAL

Town Council received an interesting presentation at last week's council meeting, when the warden at Bowden's Institution pitched the idea of the inmate work-release program.

Mitch Kassen told Councillors about the opportunity to have inmates from the Bowden Institution to work in Didsbury. The inmates get valuable experience and municipalities and local groups have the opportunity to embark on projects they otherwise might not be able to afford. Councillors immediately starting asking questions about whether or not the inmates would be able to help construct Didsbury's new proposed outdoor recreation park.

The idea sounds like a good one, and the program seems like a good one. Not only do inmates get a chance to rehabilitate themselves before they are released from jail, but they are also given the opportunities to give back to communities they took from to arrive in the institution in the first place.

Obviously safety of the public is a concern when an issue like this arises. But according to Kassen many safety steps are made before a project is undertaken and efforts are made to keep the public away from the area when work is done.

The proposed site of the recreation park is divided by a secondary highway from Didsbury's inhabitants which makes this project a possible fit for Bowden's work-release program. And Town Council did find out at the meeting that projects like building picnic tables can be done within the confines of the institutions.

Allowing inmates to help build the outdoor recreation park would save money at the Town level and put local tax dollars to another use.

Electoral Boundaries Commission decisions will affect rural Alberta

by Jack Hayden

The Electoral Boundaries Review Commission is now in the midst of holding public meetings across the province, to talk about Alberta's provincial electoral boundaries, and get public input about any necessary changes to those boundaries.

In late May, I had the opportunity to appear before the Commission during their public meeting in Calgary. I talked to them about the importance of ensuring "Effective Representation" for Albertans who don't live in Edmonton or Calgary, and I encouraged them to recognize the many challenges of representing rural areas, where it might take half a day to drive from one end of the constituency to the other (as opposed to a 15-minute bike ride across big-city constituencies). The Commission members seemed very interested and very supportive, but of course they will be hearing lots of arguments from people on the other side of the issue as well.

You may have heard a number of stories about how under-represented city residents are, and about how some city constituencies have twice the population of rural ridings. But unless you put these stories in context, you don't get the true picture.

Yes, there are some city ridings with very large populations, but there are also lots of city ridings with populations that are below average. In fact, if the boundaries were redrawn so that Edmonton's population was distributed equally among its 19 current ridings, each Edmonton constituency would actually have 2% less people than the provincial average. In Calgary's case, if the same boundary redrawing took place, each Calgary riding would have 11% more people than the provincial average. To address that issue, Calgary would need two additional seats, at the expense of rural Alberta.

But ask yourself, would the citizens of Calgary really be any better represented by having 25 MLA's, instead of 23? Would it really make a difference to these folks to have their MLA's office 1 block closer to them? And if Calgary can be governed by a City Council of 15 members, why do they need so many more MLA's?

On the other hand, think about the impact in rural Alberta of losing two more seats. How much further does the rural citizen have to travel to talk to an MLA, who is now even less available because he or she is responsible for an additional entire town?

I've encouraged the Electoral Boundaries Commission to give those questions a great deal of thought as they review the current boundaries. As the Commission makes its visit to your communities across the province, I hope you will also take the opportunity to make your concerns known. The Alberta Association of Municipal Districts and Counties (AAMD&C) represents Alberta's rural municipal governments. For more information about the association and its membership, as well as all the Rural Routes columns, see its website at www.aamdc.com.

Wonderings of the heart

Congratulations

Margaret Fradley

Congratulations!! Congratulations to the Graduating Class of 2002. As you look back over the past twelve years it may have seemed a long time, but on the other hand I am sure it also seems like the time passed quickly. You will have wonderful memories of the years you have spent in school; memories of friendships made, that will last a lifetime in many cases; memories of dedicated teachers, who helped and encouraged you as you needed it most; memories of parents and students who stood by you when things were tough.

Some of you have plans for your future; perhaps further education; pursuing some trade or taking on a temporary job; some have not yet decided what they want to do with their future as yet.

I urge you that as you make your many individual choices, choose something you love to do - if you are doing something you love to do, you will enjoy each day you go forth in your future. I heard sometime ago, someone say "I can hardly believe that I am getting paid to do something I love to do so much" - this is a wonderful thing. Seek advice, take time, but whatever you choose, remember that no matter what you may find yourselves doing, nothing will ever be wasted, every experience you have, every opportunity you take advantage of, will somehow begin to fit into the pattern of your lives.

We wish you God's blessings as you move on your individual ways and as you strive to make a difference.

Prime Minister Chretien showing lack of integrity

Dear Editor,

Prime Minister Chretien's lack of integrity is demonstrated again by the shuffling of cabinet instead of firing ministers. Nothing the government has done, not the sudden firing of Art Eggleton, the re-assigning of Don Boudria to his previous Ministry, or the vague promises of future ethics guidelines, comes close to addressing the causes of a government out of control.

The Liberals have gone from being an arrogant, lack luster, do nothing government to a patronizing, self-serving, superficial government - such a noteworthy accomplishment. The Prime Minister's stated standard for ethics is legal not ethical. It appears as though as long as you don't get caught breaking the law, then run of the mill cronyism is allowed, just don't let it hit the press, or the Prime Minister may be forced to act. For Chretien cabinet shuffles appear to be a means of removing ministers from public scrutiny, the government escaping responsibility, and allowing time to pass for the controversy to blow over. From the recent mis-steps of Eggleton, Boudria, Coderre, and MacAulay to the fading scandalous tales of Gagliano, Minna, and Chretien himself, the ever growing list of questionable practices is a list too long to place in a letter to the editor. Hopefully a list so long the pattern remains in the collective memories of Canadian voters.

This is about more than just Liberal mismanagement or corruption. This is about the integrity and functionality of the Canadian Government as an institution. This type of wink-wink, nudge-nudge wasteful practice is seemingly rampant in our Federal government. It must stop, for the sake of democracy in Canada, for the sake of good government. As Canadians we must not allow ourselves to become complacent and indifferent toward the federal government. Let us not accept corruption as common place in our government, instead let's together hold our officials to a higher standard, make all politicians of all political stripes here a cry for better government. An independent ethics commissioner is long over due. A commissioner that is appointed by Parliament and reports directly to Parliament is a must. That is more than just perception politics, that is substantive government action. As Canadians we must act to pressure government to do the right thing and create an independent Ethics Commissioner.

A Concerned Canadian,
Doug Wagstaff

GARBAGE COLLECTION

Didsburians will have say on new garbage bylaw

After first reading new by-law goes to public

by Richard Westlund

After receiving first reading at the May 29 regular Town Council meeting, Didsbury's new Solid Waste Collection and Removal bylaw will be presented to the public.

With the Mountain View Regional Waste Commission receiving the contract to take care of Didsbury's residential waste, a new by-law had to be established to reflect those changes.

"It's not a totally new by-law," said Director of Operational Services Jean Levasseur. "It has been revised and amended in accordance with the new waste agreement."

In the new proposed by-law, a weight restriction has been placed on each of the three containers Didsbury residents are allowed to fill per week. A weight restriction of 25 kilograms has been written into the bylaw.

Levasseur said Occupation Health and Safety made it mandatory to make the change. If a resident needs to dispose of more garbage than that over the counter tags can be purchased.

While Levasseur expressed a need to include the weight limit in the by-law he said good judgement would be exercised.

"If a bag weighs 27 kilograms, it is still going to be collected. The rule was added to protect against blatant abusers of the system."

Another major change in the proposed by-law is that the Town will take over the responsibility of setting up bins for multi-family dwelling containing four units or more.

Levasseur said in the past some land-owners were not fulfilling their obligations when it came to providing the service for their tenants and the Town felt it was necessary to step in.

- Jean Levasseur,
Town of Didsbury

Levasseur said initially there was some concern about what this would cost the Town, but a deal was struck with Canadian Waste through the Waste Commission and the Town will be able to break even on the initiative.

The Town will also expect, through the proposed by-law, that land-owners will be compliant in keeping garbage together in a sanitary manner. If the Town issues a notice to a landowner stating that a property has become unsightly, then the landowner will be expected to clean it up within 24 hours. If they refuse to clean it up the Town will do it and bill the resident. If that bill is not paid, it will be tacked on to the tax roll.

Penalties for non-compliance under the new by-law are also different. For contravening the by-law the first time a $100 penalty will be levied compared to the current $25. Second and following offences will be $200 from the current $100.

Input into the new bylaw must be made in writing and received by the Town by June 14, 2002 at 2 p.m.

Chinook's Edge teachers get prepared to teach CPR

It was about last year at this time that students at River Glen School in Red Deer saw the real value of having CPR skills. A man passing by their school, collapsed on the sidewalk. Students and a teacher were quickly at his side, applying CPR. Paramedics who were called to the scene praised the group for their quick and appropriate action.

"I think our students became much more aware of the importance of having CPR skills," said Matt Tillapaugh, a Physical Education teacher at River Glen School.

Situations like the one at River Glen can occur at any time or in any place. And now more Chinook's Edge students will be better prepared to take appropriate action, thanks to some financial assistance, specialized training, and a donation of CPR mannequins.

Fifteen Physical Education teachers representing five Chinook's Edge High schools are receiving first aid and CPR training today and tomorrow. At the end of the two-day session, they'll return to their schools and begin presenting the information to their grade 10 Phys. Ed students. Starting late this spring or in the fall, HJ Cody High School in Sylvan Lake, Innisfail High School, River Glen School, Sundre High School and Olds High School will offer CPR training as a part of the Phys. Ed. curriculum. Schools were selected according to their ability to offer the training twice each school year.

The additional CPR training is being sponsored through several sources. Chinook's Edge Curriculum and Instruction Department is paying for substitute teachers' wages, so that the 15 teachers can attend this week's training. Olds Kiwanis Club is supporting the project by funding the St. John Ambulance personnel required to conduct the training. The third partner in the project is the Advanced Coronary Treatment Foundation of Canada (ACT), which has purchased 60 CPR mannequins to be used in Chinook's Edge Schools.

"We're extremely pleased to be offering this program," said Jim Barritt, Coordinator, Chinook's Edge Curriculum and Instruction Dept. "It's great for our students. It gives them skills that will help save lives."

"I think it's a good idea," said Tillapaugh, who is participating in the training. "I think students will respond well, because they'll see it as real-life knowledge."

This week is Safe Kids Week

In recognition of Safe Kids Week (June 3-9), Health Authority 5 will be offering free bicycle helmet fittings to the public. All children who come down with their parents to have their helmets properly fitted will be eligible to enter a draw for a new 24" mountain bike and bike helmet.

In Didsbury, Public Health Nurses will be available to work with staff at Mountainview Sports on Wednesday, June 5 from 1 p.m. until 5:30 p.m. to provide bicycle helmet fittings to the public.

As an alternative, parents can come with their children to have their bicycle helmets fitted anytime during working hours from June 3 to 9 at Mountainview Sports or the Didsbury Health Unit.

Water levels better than last year for Didsbury farmers

But local expert says much more moisture is needed

by Richard Westlund

Watershed Coordinator for Mountain View County Ken Lewis said farmers are in better shape "moisture-wise" than they were last year but cautions local producers are not out of the woods yet.

Lewis said that farmers have seen more precipitation in the early months of this year but it will take several years of at least average amounts of moisture before water tables in Mountain View County reach normal levels.

"Personally I would still like to see more rain and some warmer temperatures," said Lewis adding that some farmers have been frustrated by freezing overnight temperatures and that crops have been put off because of that.

"Our biggest limiter so far has been the weather."

The water table feeds waterways like the Rosebud through springs. Some farmers rely heavily on the waterway to fill dugouts and help their crops.

Other water sources, like the Red Deer River, are filled through precipitation and run-off from the mountains, which have been good so far this year.

According to Alberta Environment the snowpack in the mountains has been above average to well-above-average for this time of year.

The mountain snowpack is an important source of water supply to reservoirs in the province.

Typically the peak snowmelt runoff from the mountain areas occur in late May or June.

"Our flows are definitely higher than last year," said Lewis, who said the excess runoff will benefit pasture land and perennial crops like hay.

IN THE COURTS

Man sentenced for buying engagement ring with bosses credit card

A 49-year-old man who unlawfully used his employer's credit card to buy his girlfriend an engagement ring has been fined.

Keith Eaton pleaded guilty in Didsbury provincial court to two charges of fraud.

The accused purchased the ring and a satellite dish with the card, although he was authorized to use the card for company business only, court heard.

The total amount spent was $853.86, prosecutor Danny Elliot said.

The accused was fined $500, placed on probation for nine months and ordered to pay restitution.

Man had cocaine, marijuana

A man charged after police raided a Carstairs hotel last December has been fined more than $5,000.

Lyle Edward Sinclair pleaded guilty to two counts of assault, four counts of possession of a controlled substance, and driving without insurance.

Sinclair assaulted a woman while staying at the Dominion Hotel, court heard.

The victim was thrown onto a bed, striking her head on a bed post, said prosecutor Danny Elliott.

Sinclair also assaulted the woman's eight-year-old daughter, court heard.

The accused was fined a total of $804 on the two assault charges.

Sinclair also pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and cocaine for which he was fined a total of $1,666. He was handed a 10-year firearms prohibition.

Sinclair also pleaded guilty to driving without insurance and was fined $2,500.

Man stole from bank

A 24-year-old man who made two empty envelope deposits at an Olds bank last August and then withdrew almost $600 has been fined.

Robert Murray Collins pleaded guilty to a charge of fraud under $5,000.

The accused withdrew $598.32 from the Treasury Branch although he had less than $2 in the account, prosecutor Elliott told the court.

The accused was fined $402, placed on probation for six months and ordered to pay restitution.

TOWN CELEBRATION

Didsbury Heritage and Volunteer Festival will arrive June 22

by Richard Westlund

Director of Community Services Rhonda Hunter says June 22 will be a day to recognize some important milestones for Didsbury and the people that make it a great place to live today.

On June 22 the first Didsbury Heritage and Volunteer Festival will take place on Didsbury's mainstreet. It will be a day to mark Didsbury's longevity and those who commit themselves to the Alberta town.

In conjunction with the birthday party for the train station, the Town of Didsbury will receive recognition from the province for its 100th year since being inducted as a Village. Volunteer awards will be handed out to some exceptional local people as well that day.

"We are very optimistic the community will get behind this. It will be something we can all celebrate," she said.

Didsbury Town Council at their last regular meeting passed a motion that would close the mainstreet during the day of the Festival.

Hunter said that in year's past the Town's Canada Day ceremonies haven't gone over as well as expected but believes that an annual day at the end of June might be a bigger hit among the local population.

The Empress, an old fashioned CP Rail steam engine, will chug into Town the night before to help celebrate the 100th year of the Didsbury train station.

The Empress will be on hand throughout the day and will serve as the centre piece of the celebration.

In the train station will be a silent auction in which local service groups will be able to explain their groups and recruit volunteers.

The volunteer awards will be handed out on site.

Hunter said many have been waiting for the return of the awards.

Thompson says G-8 payment package a nightmare

Myron Thompson, Member of Parliament for Wild Rose and the Official Opposition's watchdog for the G8 Summit in Kananaskis, says the guidelines for payments for those affected by the G8 Summit are a bureaucratic nightmare that will likely lead to many hardships for small businesses in Alberta.

"The government has detailed a list of ineligible costs in which they are prepared to assist those affected by lost income due to security measures but not due to acts of terrorism or protest. In other words, the government is forcing small business owners to purchase additional insurance to cover against losses and damages to their property, as well as, forcing the insurance industry to absorb the loss," said Thompson.

"In addition, since September 11 many insurance companies no longer cover acts of terrorism. Therefore, small business owners who buy additional insurance at the government's insistence may still be denied coverage due to the September 11 decision. The government is leaving them with no place to turn, except to pay for losses out of their own pockets," stated Thompson.

The compensation package clearly states that it will only apply to those businesses and individuals within the security perimeter.

FUNDRAISER

Four locals will embark on the Longest Day of Golf

by Richard Westlund

Four executives from the Didsbury Golf Course will embark on the Longest Day of Golf on June 22.

To raise money for STARS Air Ambulance, four local executives of the Didsbury Golf Course will spend a day playing golf. An entire day - from sunrise to sundown.

Al Armour, Al McCoy, Donna Fife and Bruce Dunn will embark on a marathon of the links which will end when it becomes too dark to golf.

The four players are currently collecting pledges per hole, per round or just a flat donation for their efforts.

So far, said McCoy, people have been very responsive to the fund-raising effort.

"All of us have done quite well so far and we haven't really gone out and pushed it hard yet."

June 22 was chosen for the event because it is the longest day of the year and will give

"All of us have done quite well so far and we haven't really gone out and pushed it hard yet."

- Al McCoy,
Long Day golfer

the foursome the best chance to get in a high number of rounds for the day.

McCoy estimates the foursome will start their endeavour at 5:30 to 6 a.m. The group will try to save as much time as possible while on the course.

The four will use carts to get around and will eat dinner on the fly.

Al Armour, Donna Fife, Pam Reilander (representing STARS), and Al McCoy pose for a picture at the Didsbury Golf Course last week. Armour, Fife and McCoy will join Bruce Dunn on June 22 to play as many games of golf as possible. The four are taking donations which will be given to STARS.

The golf carts used will be flagged to let other golfers know where they are at and to let them play through.

McCoy estimates the four will be able to golf anywhere from 12 to 16 rounds during the day.

"I think its going to be a lot of fun," said McCoy. "But its going to be a long day."

The Alberta Shock Trauma Air Rescue Society is a non-profit charitable organization.

The group's funding needs are met through significant private donations received from individuals, service groups, businesses and corporations, and through a partnership with Alberta Health and Wellness.

STARS has been in operation in Calgary since 1985 and in Edmonton since 1991.

Albertans are not billed by STARS for care or transport.

Local woman honoured by being listed on bronze "Egg-Money" statue

Maxine Patton among 52 names on Alberta statue

by Carla Victor

Maxine Patton of Mountain View County, was honoured to be one of 52 names listed on a bronze statue, Egg Money, which pays tribute to Alberta's pioneer farm women.

The statue is a fitting tribute to women of her time, said Maxine Patton.

It is egg money that was often the only thing that kept food on her table and provided the extra money she needed to buy a piece of land to call her own.

"That is when I started surviving," remembers Maxine Patton. "I was able to get a few chickens and the money I made selling their eggs enabled my family to keep going."

Maxine, now a great grandmother at 88, raised her two sons single-handedly on a half section near Didsbury. She remembers times were very grim back then and often egg money was all they had to make ends meet.

Maxine was honoured by her family and close friends this Mother's Day when their contributions sponsored the addition of her name on a life-size statue in Calgary's Fish Creek Provincial Park.

The statue, "Egg Money" portrays a farm wife, together with her two children, vying for her attention, while she feeds her chickens. Maxine's name joins 51 other women's names listed on the base of the statue.

The statue, "Egg Money", was created to capture the spirit, determination and dedication of Alberta's pioneer women, said the artists who created the sculpture, Don and Shirley Beggs of Cochrane.

The tribute is a touching reminder of tough times for Maxine.

"That's all I knew - every penny counted back then. It's just the way it was, everyone was poor," she said.

Maxine credits her strong will and a devout faith in God for getting her through tough times.

Maxine bought a modest half section in 1958 when her boys were small.

It was egg money, and money from selling goats milk that provided a down payment.

Maxine scrimped and saved for the land, trying to get by in Calgary, working at the Ogden Shops and the Public Trustee's office during the early 50s.

She fulfilled a dream to live in the country the day she bought her land.

"I wanted to have something for myself, something for the family."

"I don't want to move into town until I have too. I will stay on the farm for as long as possible."

- Maxine Patton, Pioneer farm woman

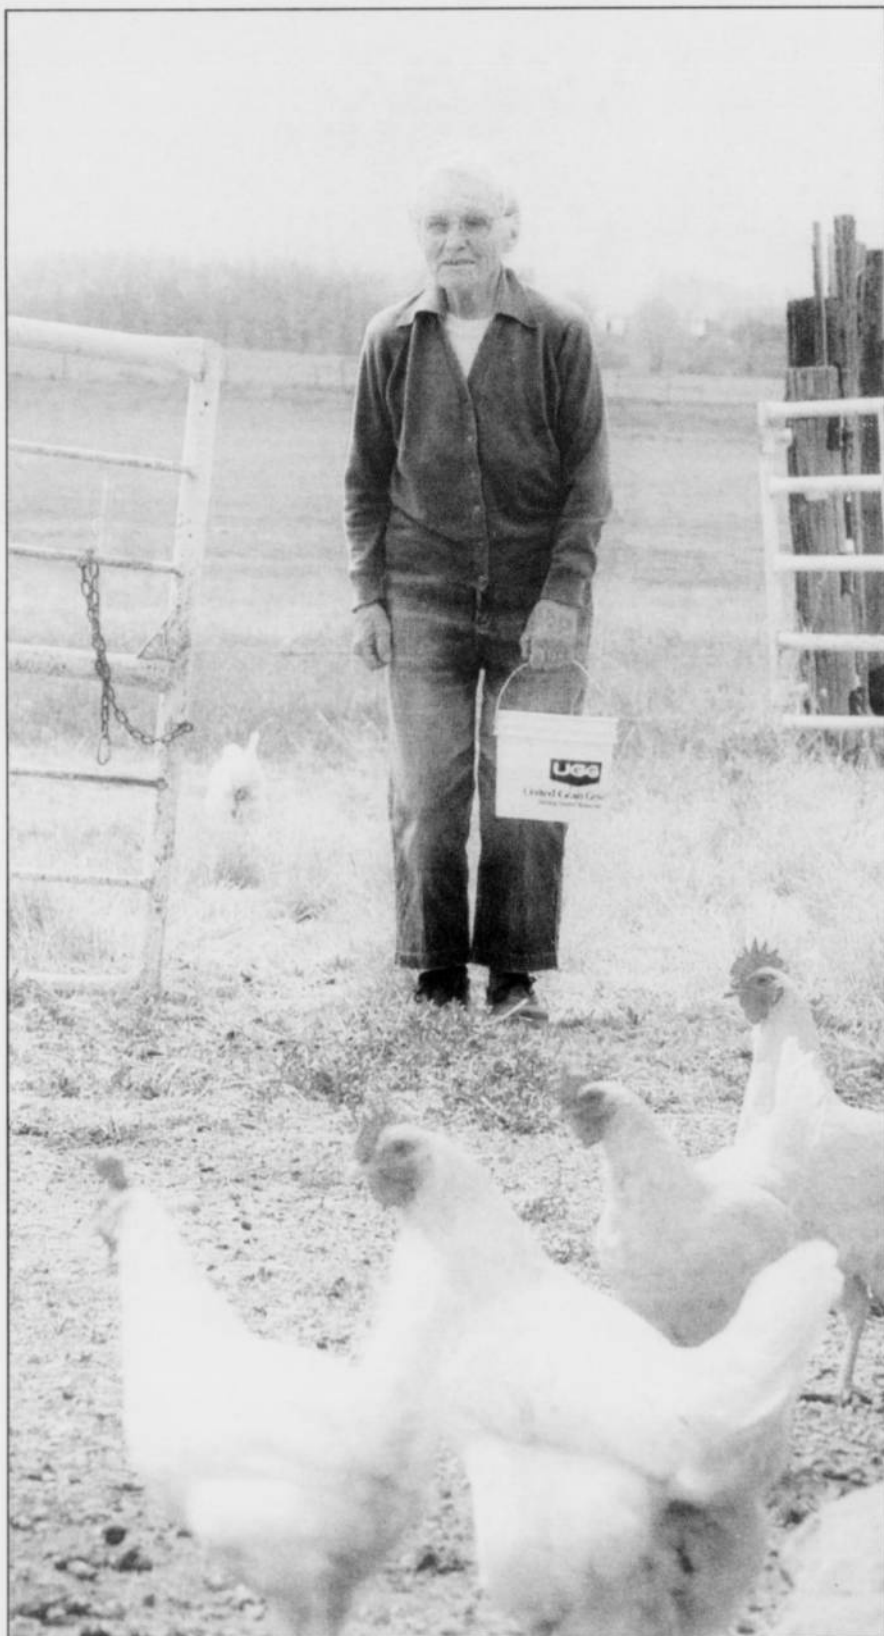

She remembers that her type of gumption wasn't out of the ordinary back then. Women needed to have it if the family was going to survive.

"And so here I am today, all tucked out," said Maxine.

Tuckered out she may be, but that isn't stopping her from bringing her eggs to Olds Auction Mart every Tuesday.

"I have been coming here for as long as I can remember. I started bringing cows and now I'm still selling my eggs for money to get by," said Maxine, she enjoys the social opportunity selling her eggs at auction provides.

Maxine Patton, seen here with her chickens, was honoured when her name was listed on a statue paying homage to Alberta's pioneer women.

NOTES FROM NIGERIA

Focus on the Family

QUESTION: My teen-age son is becoming increasingly difficult to get along with. Isn't there some way to avoid this blackout period and the other stresses associated with the adolescent voyage?

DR. DOBSON: Not with some teen-agers, perhaps not with the majority. Tension occurs in the most loving and intelligent of families.

Why? Because it is driven by powerful hormonal forces that overtake and possess boys and girls in the early pubescent years.

I believe parents and even some behavioral scientists have underestimated the impact of the biochemical changes occurring in puberty. We can see the effect of these hormones on the physical body, but something equally dynamic is occurring in the brain. How else can we explain why a happy, contented, cooperative 12-year-old suddenly becomes a sullen, angry, depressed 13-year-old? Some authorities would contend that social pressure alone accounts for this transformation. I simply don't believe that.

The emotional characteristics of a suddenly rebellious teen-ager are rather like the symptoms of premenstrual syndrome or severe menopause in women, or perhaps a tumultuous midlife crisis in men. Obviously, dramatic changes are going on inside! Furthermore, if the upheaval were caused entirely by environmental factors, its onset would not be so predictable in puberty. The emotional changes I have described arrive right on schedule, timed to coincide precisely with the arrival of sexual maturation.

Both characteristics, I contend, are driven by a common hormonal assault. Human chemistry apparently goes haywire for a few years, in some more than others, affecting mind as much as body.

QUESTION: I made a little offhand comment the other day about my daughter's hair, and she cried for an hour. I didn't mean to hurt her. I guess she's just more sensitive than I thought. Do I have to walk on eggshells around her?

DR. DOBSON: You should always be mindful that your daughter is listening to what you say about her and that she's "reading" the subtle attitudes that you might like to conceal. Kids are extremely sensitive to their parents' love and respect.

That's why adults must learn to guard what they say in their presence. Many times I have been consulted by a mother regarding a particular problem her child is having. As Mom describes the details of the boy or girl's problems, I notice that the subject of all this conversation is standing about a yard behind her. His ears are 10 feet tall as he listens to a candid description of all his faults.

The child may remember that conversation for a lifetime. Parents often inadvertently convey disrespect to a child whom they genuinely love.

For example, Mom may become tense and nervous when little Jimmy speaks to guests or outsiders. She butts in to explain what he is trying to say or laughs nervously when his remarks sound foolish. When someone asks him a direct question, she interrupts and answers for him.

She reveals her frustration when she is trying to comb his hair or make him "look nice" for an important event. He knows Mom thinks it is an impossible assignment. If he is to spend a weekend away from the family, the mother gives him an extended lecture on how to avoid making a fool of himself.

These subtle behaviors are signals to the child that the mother doesn't trust him with her image and that he must be supervised closely to avoid embarrassing the whole family. He reads disrespect in her manner, though it is framed in genuine love.

The first step in building a strong self-concept in your children is to be very careful what you say and do in their presence. Be particularly cautious about the matters of physical attractiveness and intelligence. These are two primary "soft spots" where boys and girls are most vulnerable.

Some work will never be done in Nigeria, say missionaries

Dear Family and friends,

Yes, it is time for the last weekly letter of the school year. We will continue to write during the summer break but school has ended for the year. I thought that since there have been a lot of other lasts this week, I would term this a "last" as well. Don't worry we will write again next week.

We had the last Hillcrest exams for this group of 12th grade students. Many of them did not have to take all of these exams. If they had an 'A' average in the class they were allowed to skip the exam. Many of them still came to school just to spend time with their friends.

The last chapel of the school year was on Friday. It was also the last chapel with the current chaplain. Russell and Cynthia Atherton are leaving Nigeria and will be looking for ministry opportunities in the States. The Athertons came to Nigeria for a two year assignment and have stayed for five, so I guess it is time for them to move on.

The last formal Hillcrest school activity for the Seniors was graduation on Friday evening. I won't say that it is the last graduation they will attend at Hillcrest because many of them will come back when brothers and sisters graduate or just to see friends graduate. It was a very nice graduation. Since we are still under a curfew, graduation started at 6:00 rather than the usual 7:30. The ceremony was finished by 7:30. Graduation at Hillcrest is quite different from what I had experienced before coming here. Since the classes are small, each person is introduced to the audience. We learned what their plans were after graduation, where they were going to school, their favorite memory of their time at Hillcrest and what they wanted to be remembered for.

It gave all of us a chance to have a little glimpse into who they are as people. After the ceremony there is a tea for faculty, parents and graduates. It is always very nice with beautiful decorations and great food. This year was no exception. A good time to visit with parents and other teachers while we waited for the students to come.

We also had our last staff meeting and other committee meetings for the year or in my case until after home ministry assignment. There have been some weeks when I felt like I spent more time doing committee work than doing library work. That is one thing I am not going to miss for the next few months.

There were some other "lasts" that have been harder to deal with. The last time we will see some of the staff and students who have become good friends throughout this year. The last time my discipleship group met with me. I don't know who will take over with the girls next year or if, when we return, I will lead the group again. Today was the last prayer meeting with the group we have met with this year. We will continue to meet and pray but many of the group will be gone either for the summer or for longer.

There are some things that will never be last until we leave Nigeria finally. There will always be books to catalog and to put back on the shelf. There will always be books that need repair (not my favorite thing to do so I tend to put it off). There will always be books and shelves that need to be straightened and dusted. And fortunately, there will always be students who want to check out books. I have had many students ask me when they can check out books this summer. Though we have to do inventory first thing this summer, there will be several students eagerly waiting for us to finish so they can get some books to read. There will always be students who need help finding something in the library. All this means, that my job is pretty secure. There is always some work to do.

As we look at the end of the year and the lasts, we also have to look at what is coming. For us it is HMA (or furlough) but for Hillcrest, there is a new class of grade 1 students starting in the Fall. There will be new staff, a new school year with all the staff meetings and committee meetings that are a part of that year. This is a new beginning and in one sense we will have a new group of Seniors. They may have been at Hillcrest for 11 years but they will just be beginning their Senior year in the Fall.

With a bit of sadness we complete the lasts of this year and look forward with anticipation to the beginnings of next year. But in between there is a library to inventory and 18,000 books to move out of the library at the beginning of the summer and back in at the end. Plenty or work to keep us busy.

Sincerely,

Janet, for the Snyders

Dan and Janet Snyder are former Didsburians doing missionary work in Nigeria.

Koinonia Graduates seize the day

Carpe diem is the Latin term for "seize the day" and one that at least 21 students from Koinonia will be following this Saturday, June 8th during their High School Graduation ceremonies.

Grade 12 Teacher Gerald Rempel says this year's graduating class chose the theme because they felt it was appropriate for the occasion.

It is accompanied by a verse of scripture; Ephesians 15 and 16 - a tradition that each graduating class upholds at Koinonia.

After a year of working hard to maintain their grades, students will be asked to gather at the Olds First Baptist Church on Saturday at 2:00 pm to begin their graduation exercises. "After that we will be going over to the Carstairs Community Hall for the banquet portion of the evening," Rempel explains. "...that's at 6:00 pm by invitation. A short program will follow."

The class of 2002 at Koinonia has no grad committee per say, "...we prefer to doing things by consensus," says Rempel. "So far it has worked out really well for us." Rempel adds that to raise money for graduation expenses and the end of the year party, students have been volunteering their time at the Household Goods Thrift Store in Didsbury and as "chicken catchers" at a Carstairs-area poultry farm.

This is Koinonia's 21st graduating class.

Didsbury Library worker changes career after 26 years

Mark Fischer

Mark Fischer isn't retiring...he's just shifting gears. After 26 years of work with the Didsbury Municipal Library, Fischer has officially handed in his resignation.

"I've been thinking about moving on for some time now...since about last December. But then I decided to stay on another year," says Fischer. He decided to opt out of his one year self-set timeline when he received a serious job offer at the Olds Bowling Alley. "Bowling has been a passion of mine for many, many years and it's just something I couldn't turn down."

Don't expect to see Fischer at the Bowling Alley for awhile, though. Beginning next month, he plans to take a brief excursion to Alaska to fulfill another long-standing ambition of his; that of travel. "This is the first time that I've been to Alaska," explains Fischer. "It's a 19 day tour that I will be going on...I'm really looking forward to it."

Traveling has held a strong interest for Fischer for years. During his tenure at the Library Fischer organized and ran the popular Brown Bag Travel Hour for patrons.

Each Brown Bag "session" featured a video (lasting approximately 50 - 60 minutes) on vacation hot-spots around the world.

Fischer's Alaskan trip will round out his extensive travels to the United States. To date he has visited all but five of the states - four after his June trip. "It's just someplace I wanted to finally see in person," says Fischer who frequently featured Alaska on his Brown Bag Travel Hours. "...the scenery and just the country itself is very appealing to me."

Being a skilled carpenter, Fischer graciously crafted many of the shelves and book-stands over the years. In addition, his knowledge of computerized library systems and extensive background of the facility itself has allowed for many advancements in the amenities offered at the Library today. "The biggest change I've seen since I began has probably been with the automation of things...everything's so much more assessable with computers now," says Fischer who marks his fondest memory as the time when workers had to move stack upon stack of books into the facility's current location next to the town office. "I remember that move we made from the library's former location where the Wheatland Restaurant is now...before that it was situated in the building where the Royal Bank is now...Back then our wage was $50.00 per month! Anyone wishing to bid Fischer well can do so at the Bon Voyage gathering being planned Wednesday, June 12th from 7:00 - 9:00 pm at the Library.

Town employee wins Better Body Challenge

Residents dropping by the town office needing to speak to Marina Wagstaff can now simply ask for "The Champ". As of a few weeks ago, that's exactly what Marina has become (at least among her closest friends and associates) since winning Fitness FX's Better Body Challenge 2002.

This is the second year Fitness FX has run the competition dedicated to helping others achieve their diet and exercise goals. Participants are encouraged to seek advice on individual diet and exercise regimes to help them with the transformation to a healthier and stronger body. Although dozens of residents and patrons to the facility signed up for the three month transformation period, only 13 were left by the end of the competition - three males and ten females. "We met at the gym that Sunday and everybody that was still in the competition was there," says Wagstaff. "...I really didn't know that I was going to win. I mean, I was really trying to win, of course...but then so was everybody else. In the end everybody was encouraging each other to do well. We would see each other at the gym all the time, so it was easy to keep in touch."

Since starting the competition in the beginning of February, Wagstaff has lost 20 pounds and ten per cent of her body fat. "The hardest part was learning to follow the advice Marc (Aubee) would give me at the gym because he was always right...I'd try to cut down on what I was eating and he'd encourage me to eat more and eat more often, and he'd always be right. Whatever he said seemed to work."

While Marc Aubee and his wife Wanda inspired Wagstaff's fitness and nutritional behavior at the gym, it was her husband Doug who supported her the most at home. "He was super...especially when it came to helping take care of the kids. I certainly wouldn't have been able to do this without him." In addition to her new-found reliance on her husband's support at home, Wagstaff has also had to learn a whole new regime for home cooking."
